Dear Ella June,
Lots of luck to a real swell girl, its been a pleasure knowing you. Louise the only smart girl you know.

This is your notebook . . .

a record of your days at North in the year 1944. Open it; read it; study its pictures. Ask your friends to sign it. Then keep it—keep it until you are no longer young. These pages will make you remember how foolish, how wise, how frivolous, how solemn you were when you were eighteen.

You will remember those school days of a war year—a year when you did not find the school a haven from the grimness of war but a place where each did his part to hasten victory. Yet even with the tumult of war about you, you did find time to study, to laugh at moron jokes, to sing silly songs, to sip cokes, to dance, to write long letters to friends in the armed forces, and to dream. You dreamed of a world at peace—a world in which the security of high school students would no longer be threatened. And you knew that you had to prepare yourselves to be the builders of that world in which there could be no war.

Ella,
I hate you with a purple passion, but we've had lots of fun. always remember

The Vikings of the gridiron of 1943 played a successful but not entirely victorious season. Although small, outweighed, and hampered by injuries in nearly every contest, they played hard, and played to win.

East, North's rival by tradition, was saved by the clock from a rude upset by the Vikings. That game proved to be the most outstanding ball game of the year even though we were defeated 19-13. As the final gun sounded, North was on East's one-yard line, first and goal to go! North finished third in the league standings.

Basketball at North High in '44 should have been of a higher caliber than the final results showed. The Vikings, with lettermen returning, seemed to be one of the top contenders for the title according to pre-season information.

The season for North opened against South; the final score turned out North 28, South 31. There was a great deal of disputing during and following this ball game because of a referee's decision — but after all is said and done, the referee's decision is final! The Norsemen settled down and captured the next two tilts against West and Manual and then couldn't seem to click for the remainder of the season. North finished fourth in the league standings.

Exponents of the horsehide and the hickory stick under the expert coaching of B. O. Moles look forward to another of the many victorious seasons of North High.

Nine returning lettermen, who round out a squad of sound defensive players and potent hitters, comprise a ball club of real power.

Last season, North was crowned city co-champions with East High. These teams split their two scheduled contests, with East winning the first, 5-2, and North taking the second by a score of 9-8. North was otherwise undefeated during the season.

City and State Prep Wrestling Champs - 1944

The powerful North High grapplers again drove to highest honors by capturing the state wrestling crown this year. This victory was the eighth in eleven years registered by popular Coach Moles.

The team was strong in practically every weight and had little trouble in disposing of every foe to either city or state meets as far as team points were concerned. Ed McMechen, Joe Ferretti, Will Lynch, and Bob Klune were All-City: Doug Parmeter, Will Lynch, Bob Sambora, and Bob Klune were All-State. The North squad with a host of returning lettermen is expected to be extremely potent next season.

..Co-Champions

Exponents of the horsehide and the hickory stick under the expert coaching of B. O. Moles look forward to another of the many victorious seasons of North High.

Nine returning lettermen, who round out a squad of sound defensive players and potent hitters, comprise a ball club of real power.

Last season, North was crowned city co-champions with East High. These teams split their two scheduled contests, with East winning the first, 5-2, and North taking the second by a score of 9-8. North was otherwise undefeated during the season.
